

PA auditor finds 40% of budget wasted or misused

By JON IMMANUEL

A 600-page report by the Palestinian Authority's auditing office has found that $323 million - almost 40 percent of the PA budget - were wasted or misused by ministries last year and said some ministers channeled funds from foreign donors into personal accounts. Speaking on Palestinian TV, Jarar

Kidwa, head of the neport's compilers in the office of PA Chairman Yasser Arafat, He said that some ministers opened p said that one minister rang up a $7,000 phone bill in one month.

"All ministers, deputies and directors-general who are behind this waste will be brought to justice. Narries and details of the misuse of funds have been give to President Arafat," Kidwa said. He said the report, a copy of which was handed to

He said that some ministers opened personal and ministry bank accounts without informing the Finance Ministry and that funds from foreign donors went into the personal accounts.

The PA budget for 1997 is $866m., said Palestinian Legislative Council Speaker Ahmed Qurie, former economics minister. The Palestinian Legislative Council last week discussed the misuse of funds, accusing officials of living far beyond their salaries.

"For example we found that $45-$50 million should have gone to the budget from customs fees on cars, but this money was lost on giving people cars without paying customs," Kidwa said.

Financial corruption in the PA is widely assumed by Palestinians surveyed in recent polls. A teachers' strike last month, which was suppressed by PA security forces, was partly motivated by what the teachers saw as the gap between their living standards and those of PA officials. The report was quoted in Al Hayat al-

Jadida, the Palestinian newspaper closest to Arafat

Meanwhile, Daoud Kuttab, the private TV station director jailed last Tuesday for broadcasting the proceedings of the Legislative Council, which routinely charges PA ministers with corruption, may be released within 24 hours, as soon as Arafat speaks with him, his family said.

Arafat's advisers said that Kuttab was in jail for violating a contract rather than for broadcasting. Kuttab was reported to be starting a hunger strike in the Ramallah jail to protest his arrest.

Khatami took 20.7 million votes of the 29.7 million cast in the Friday election. Ali Akbar Nateq-Nouri, his conservative challenger who conceded defeat earlier yesterday, won 7.2 million votes. Two other candidates who ran won less than a million votes each.

Iran's supreme leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, issued a brief statement endorsing Khatami's victory. "I give my warm congratulation to Mr. Khatami," he said.

Gov't: No halt to Har Homa

By MICHAL YUDELMAN and JON IMMANUEL

Government spokesmen yesterday denied reports of a proposal to halt building in Jerusalem's Har Homa as part of a package to restart peace talks with the Palestinians.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, meanwhile, said he would meet with Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu Tuesday without preconditions.

Mubarak is sending his political adviser, Ocama Baz, to Jerusalem today to prepare the ground for the summit meeting, which is due to be held in Sharm e-Sheikh. Baz met with Netanyahu on Friday to exchange ideas on how to restart talks with the Palestinians. "My personal envoy will go again to Israel and we will see what they will reach and what direction can be taken, so that the Palestinian and Israeli sides can continue the talks," Mubarak, accompanied by Jordan's King Hussein, said in Akaba yesterday. We have not talked about conditions. We were talking about how to solve the present crisis." Mubarak added.

Today Baz is to present Netanyahu an initiative which apparently has the support of the Americans, Europeans, and King Hussein, sources in Jerusalem said. Under this plan, the Palestinians will resume the security cooperation with Israel and fight terrorism; a political solution will be worked out for the construction on Har Homa, with construction there to be halted temporarily; and the talks on a fast-track final-status agreement and on the second pullback in the West Bank will be resumed.

Khatami's victory had been helped by his appeal as a moderale and social reformer, particularly to Iranian women and the country's large young population, analysts said.

"I am very happy. It was very important that Nateq-Nouri did not become president. For the first time the people have rejected what the establishment wanted." said Mitra, a 20-year-old woman student in a main Teheran shopping street. More social freedom for

Cities to support local authorities' strike

By DAVID HARRIS

The Jerusalem. Tel Aviv. and Haifa municipalities are this morning to issue a statement of support for the Union of Local Authorities' strike and laying out their own demands for Treasury funds, The larger cities have so far not participated in the strike. Now in its twelfth day, the strike has brought virtually all local council services to a standstill, other than education. garbage collection, and emergency services. Last night, the Tel Aviv Labor Court was discussing a request for back-to-work orders from 16 localities fighting plans by the Histadrui to call some 100,000 municipal workers out on strike. Tonight top ULA leaders are to meet with Prime Minister's Office Director-General Avigdor Lieberman in an effort to end the ULA-Treasury standoff. Over the weekend, Lieberman and interior Ministry Director-General Ya'acov Efrati met with ULA leaders and promised to do their utmost to bring about a truce. On Friday, dozens of local council heads chained themselves to the gate in front of the Prime Minister's Office during the weekly cabinet meeting, later express-ing anger that their plight was not even discussed at the session.

The municipalities have built up deficits amounting to some NIS 4 billion and are demanding the Treasury cover most of their

Rehov Bar-Ilan closure passes quietly

By ELLI WOHLGELERNTER

The long-awaited Shabbat closing of Jerusalem's Rehov Bar-Ilan went off without incident, with the street closed seven and a half hours during prayer hours and open to traffic the rest of the time. But contrary to what secular residents of the neighborhood were told, the permits issued by the Transport Ministry explicitly state that they are not allowed to travel on Bar-Ilan during the closed hours.

"You can't drive into Bar-Ilan during prayer hours even with the permit - it's closed for everyone. The police do not allow any of the secular residents to go through," said Aliza Avinezer, one of the original petitioners to the High Court of Justice in the case. Avinezer, who lives at the westem end of Bar-Ilan where the street's name changes Yirmiyahu, said she still has to walk 300 to 400 meters to her house from where she can park. During prayer hours when the road is closed, Avinezer said, "Bar-Ilan is like a promenade, with people walking freely in the road like in Mea She'arim and Geula - and that's what they wanted!"

Police said late yesterday a few hundred haredim stood on the sidewalk at the intersection of Bar-Ilan and Shmuel Hanavi and screamed "Shabbes, Shabbes" at passing cars, but did not throw stones or garbage as at previous demonstrations.

They are clever, because they know that if they make trouble, the road will be opened again," said Avinezer. "But it's only the beginning. They will close the road for all of Shabbat - it's only a matter of time."

The Justice Ministry said Friday it is investigating the death of Khaled Abu Dayeh, who went on a rampage in Jerusalem's Shaare Zedek Hospital last Wednesday.

Abu Dayeh, 37, arrested two weeks ago for trying to steal a soldier's gun, was sent for psychiatric observation after attempting suicide, and was brought to Shaare Zedek complaining of a sore throat. Ben-Elissar bans

By HILLEL KUTTLER and MICHAL YUDELMAN

WASHINGTON - In his first action on returning here, Ambassador to the US Eliahu Ben-Elissar banned cmbassy staff from speaking to the press. Ben-Elissar spent two days in Israel last week fighting for his job after accusing officials in the Prime Minister's Office for subverting his standing in the US capital,

At a staff meeting Friday, Ben-Elissar told embassy employees that he had reclaimed his job and warned against further leaks to the press. Of the recent episode, Ben-Elissar said: This was a non-aesthetic attempt to transfer me to another job and to have [former ambassador] Zalman Shoval replace me. The prime minister was convinced not to do it. This chapter was an unpleasant one in the history of the embassy, and now it's closed."

Ben-Elissar told the employees they were to stop speaking to Israeli and non-Israeli journalists,

Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu to replace him. The sources said Ben-Elissar's status will be weaker now and the two new diplomatic appointments made by the prime minister in the Washington cmbassy, Leonard Davis as the crubassy's No. 2, and Ra'anan Gissin as information attache, may undermine him further, because they will work directly with the prime minister. In addition, Netanyahn's political adviser Dore Gold was appointed UN ambassador and Foreign Minister David Levy's supporter Shmuel Siso was named consul general in New York. On Channel 2's Meet the Press, taped before his return to Washington, Ben-Elissar said he did not believe Notanyahu wanted to replace him, despite the Prime Minister's Office's failure to deny persistent rumors and reports that Netanyahu had asked Shoval to take Ben-Elissar's place. He denied the reports that he

Cabinet okays Jordan water plan

The agreement, which has hready received Jordan's already received Jordan's approval, will pave the way for intensified negotiations on a range of joint infrastructure projects, National Infrastructure Ministry spokesman Ra'anan Gissin said last night.

Thursday, Water On Commissioner Meir Ben-Meir met with bis counterpart in Amman to conclude the agreement for the transfer, the second stunned by Khatami's landslide victory, since he had been regarded as the dark horse in the campaign. The man regarded as the front-runner was Ali Akbar Nateq-Nouri, who lost to Khatami by at least 13 million votes though he had been supported by the country's spiritual leader Ayatollah Alí Khamenei.

Mohammed Khatami might result in domestic reforms in Iran but will not change Teheran's policy toward Israel and the West, analysts said last night.

Uri Lubrani, government coordinator for Lebanon and a former Israeli ambassador to Iran, called the election "a real revolution in Iran" and said it vindicates US policy of isolating Teheran. "I think that what happened is that we can see that this was a protest vote surprising in its volume," Lubrani said. "The protest was against Khamenei and its regime and against the extremism."

Lubrani said that during the last week the Iranian regime tried to disrupt Khatami's campaign. He said Khatami's victory vindicated the Clinton administration's policy of isolating Iran until it demonstrates it abides by international norms.

"This is definitely a protest that supports the US policy," he said. "It comes to say what the Americans say: that the regime has to change. And in contrast the Europeans got a slap in the face with its critical dialogue, that collapsed after Mikanos trial."

But Lubrani cautioned against expecting Iranian policy toward Israel and the US to change soon. "It's too early," he said. "I wouldn't speculate. Khamenei might do his best to ignore Khatami because in the end he determines. But for the US, it's a vindication." David Menashri, who holds the Menashri said that Khatami's main goal will be to reform the economy, something that would require support from the international community. But whether this will benefit Israel and the US is not clear.

"The foreign policy will be a product of the freedom of movement he gets and the internal situation," he said. "The subject of Israel and the US are so basic in the conception of the revolution and the final flags that remain in the regime, so withdrawal from them is problematic. Everything depends on the political forces."

Barry Rubin, senior fellow at Bar-Ilan's Begin-Sadat Center for Strategic Studies, agreed. He cautioned against seeing Khatami's victory as signaling a change in Teheran's radical foreign policy. He pointed out that the new president is close to his predecessor, Hashemi Rafsanjani, who reigned over a pro-terrorist Iran for the past eight years.

"In terms of international meaning, be is close to Rafsanjani, which means he is part of the cur-rent establishment," Rubin said. "Certainly on issues of foreign policy, terrorism, and supporting the peace process, he will follow a similar policy to that of Rafsanjani.

"He should be given a chance but I don't think he will change foreign policy, including on Israel," Rubin said. "If he wants to make internal reforms, it might make it far harder to change key things, like opposi-tion to Israel and support for Hizbullah."

Palestinian sources said Mubarak agreed to meet Netanyahu only after he received signals that Israel will be ready for the compromise he proposes, namely freezing construction on Har Homa. An American initiative, which is to be presented to Israel by special US envoy Dennis Ross, is also reportedly based on temporary halt to the building on Har Homa

When construction is resumed, building for Arabs in nearby Jerusalem neighborhoods will begin at the same time. The halt in the construction is expected to enable the resumption of the nego-tiations with the Palestinians, who are demanding it as a condition for resuming the talks.

Channel 1 reported Friday night that a proposal being hammered out in Jerusalem consists of completing the infrastructure for Har Homa, and then stopping for a planning stage, in which construction for Arabs will be planned as well.

But Netanyahu spokesman Shai Bazak denied the existence of any such proposal or decision. Cabinet secretary Danny Naveh said, There will be no freeze on the building in Har Homa. The construction there will continue as part of the government's policy to strengthen Jerusalem. There are no plans and we haven't suggested any to stop the construction there. We have a few new ideas about building for Arabs in Jerusalem, and we will advance them too as part of the effort to resume the talks."

The PA statement accused Israel of trying to drive a wedge between the PA and the US government.

French rivals keep truce ahead of elections

Many voters still undecided

PARIS (Reuter) - French politicians marked a truce yesterday. the eve of a snap parliamentary election, after a lackluster campaign focused on personalities as much as issues like high unemployment, the economy and Europe.

Policians were harred from television and radio yesterday, giving 39 million voters one to ponder their choice from among 6.389 candidates in today's first phase of voting for the 577-seat National Assembly. A record 1,469 women are running.

The election, with run-offs on June t, will either renew President Jacques Chirac's centre-right government until the end of his seven-year term in 2002 or make him a virtual lame duck in an uneasy cohabitation with the Opinion polls before a blackout a week ago showed the centre right was likely to retain power despite record unemployment and painful austerity, but that the left was within striking distance of an upset win with many voters undecided.

"Everything remains possible," the daily Le Parisien said in a front-page headline. "The surprise vote," Liberation said. Gamhling his presidency by calling the vote 10 months early after promptings from unpopular Prime Minister Alain Juppe, Chirac has urged "a new elan" to push ahead with European Union integration, a single currency and free market reforms.

He made a final veiled plug for his allies at an informal EU summit in the Netherlands, saying he saw a "revolution" in Europe over growing acceptance of a need for a social model to protect citizens from unemployment and poverty.

The opposition Socialists, cam-paigning to "Change the Future," have accused Chirac of grovel-ling to financial markets with fiscal austerity to qualify for a sin-gle currency and say he has for-gotten his pledges to lead a fight for jobs.

If elected, Socialist leader Lionel Jospin promises to create 700,000 youth johs and cut the working week to 35 hours from 39 with no loss of pay. He also says he will not impose any extra austerity to qualify for the single currency from 1999.

The first round score of the farright National Front led by Jean-

Marie Le Pen will also be significant. The left would be helped if a large number of Front candidates win the 12.5 percent of registered voters needed to reach the runoff. Front voters generally turn to conservatives in constituencies where their own candidate is eliminated.

"The true danger is him," the daily France-Soir said in a frontpage headline alongside a photo-graph of Le Pen. "And them," it added by a photograph of two riverbank anglers, representing abstentions.

But much of the campaign has focused on Juppe's image as a brilliant but unfeeling technocrat more than on issues.

Polls last year showed he was the least popular premier since the start of the Fifth Republic in 1958 and even rightist voters want Chirac to dump him if be wins.

The first round will only be a pointer to the final result and Juppe has said no clear trend may emerge. Only candidates winning at least 50 percent will be elected outright, leaving most of the seats to June 1 run-offs. A lack of fire in the campaign has stirred fears of high abstention.

Troops break up anti-Kabila march

By ARTHUR MALU-MALU

KINSHASA (Reuter) - Troops in Kinshasa fired in the air yesterday and loaded 100 demonstrators into trucks to break up a march by about 1,000 studeots protesting against self-proclaimed President Laurent Kabila's new government. Witnesses who followed the trucks said they were driven to Kinshasa's Kololo military barracks. The soldiers had said earlier they were taking the students back to campus.

They were taken into the camp and I stayed outside for about balf an bour. I did not see them leave," one said.

They said the pro-Kahila marchers, many of them followers of murdered independence prime minister Patrice Lumumba, called on people to support Kabila's Alliance of Democratic Forces for the Liberation of Congo (AFDL). Most of the students in yesterday's march in the capital pan-

"I am acting under orders," said the troop commander, who called himself John. He said former soldiers of ousted president Mobutu Sese Seko's army were among the protesters.

The AFDL entered Kinshasa on May 17 after the flight of Mobutu, who dominated Africa's third largest country for more than three decades.

TORONTO (AP) - Canada's debate over women's role in politics shifts to the far north tomorrow wheo Inuits vote on whether to create a unique legislature that would guarantee equal numbers of seats for men and women.

At issue is whether Nunavut, an Inuit-governed territory to be established in the eastern Canadian Arctic in 1999, reserves half the seats in its 22-member legislature for women. But the pro and con arguments echo those sounded across the country in recent months.

In March, Prime Minister Jean Chretien incurred sharp criocism, even from within his own Liberal Party, when he appointed four women as parliamentary candidates rather than allowing open nomination meetings in those districts.

"I find it an insult to me and all women," said Elsie Wayne, a Parliament member for the opposition Progressive Conservatives. demeaning." "You should be able to stand up there and sell yourself and, if not, the other person should win." Chretien and others who believe women need a hand in entering poliocs argue that men often have better fund-raising networks and lighter family responsibilities. But the Liberal Party undermined its prowomen image by compiling an election guide that provided wardrobe tips for female candidates.

"Your wardrobe says a lot about you," said the guide. "It should get as much care as the politics that you defend, your strategy, and your election team." Even some Liberals were embarrassed by the guide, and opposioon parties had a field day with it. "When I first read it, I thought it was some kind of joke," said Pierette Venne, a Parliament member for the separatist Bloc Quebecois. "I find it retrograde and Chretien insisted his intervendon was needed to ensure the Liberals met their goal needed to ensure the Liberais met their goal of having women running in 25 percent of Canada's 301 parliamentary districts in the June 2 federal election. By the deadline in early May, the party met the goal with 84 women candidates – 28 percent. The outgoing Parliament has 295 seats, and 53 of them – 18 percent – are held by women Manw women fael that number women. Many women feel that number, though an all-time high, is disgracefully low, hut there is deep disagreement as to whether special breaks are justified or demeaning.

In Nunavut, the proposal before voters would establish two separate lists of candidates in each legislaove election. Each district would elect one man and one woman. A panel which toured remote communides to prepare for the referendum heard sharply contrasting views.

"I see the battle of the sexes," said Paul Quassa of Igloulik, an island community between the tip of the mainland and Baffin Island. "I don't think we're fully prepared or planned for this proposal." But othe Inuits said gender equity might bring mon attention to issues such as child care and health care.

John Amagoalik, who heads the agency laying the groundwork for Nunavut's cre ation, supports the gender-equal legislatur and says it would be the first of its type i the world.

He says the legislature would reflect old traditions of Inuit society in which men and women divided work and responsibilities equally.

Nunavut, which has 18,000 residents, is now part of the Northwest Territories and only one of its 10 territorial legislators is a women.

Indonesian mob torches church

BANJARMASIN, Indonesia (Reuter) - A residential area in the center of Banjarmasin was still burning yesterday, 24 bours after a rampaging mob torched a church and set homes, a hotel and a shopping complex ablaze on the last day of Indonesia's general election campaign.

Troops and police stood guard at intersections and sealed off burned out areas, including the town's main four-star Hotel Kalimantan and a multi-level complex in the main shopping district. The town, the capital of South

Kalimantan province on Indonesia's side of Borneo island, was tense yesterday, but the violence had died down and police imposed a curfew from eight p.m. to five a.m. The official Antara news agency quoted police as saying four people had died in the rioting after being trapped in burning buildings. A local source said one body was found in the burnt hotel. Police said they had arrested 50 people. Town residents said the first signs of trouble came when supporters of Indonesia's ruling Golkar party paraded through the streets and were confronted by partisans of the Moslem-orieoted United Development Party (PPP).

The not started when angry Moslems poured out of mosques after Friday noon prayers and went on a rampage, marching up and down the streets and hurling stones at churches and Chinese shops.

The Batak Protestant church, about a half km (quarter mile) from a huge mosque, listed in guidebooks as the second largest in Indonesia, was attacked about 5 p.m., the church caretaker said.

"They came at five o'clock. They took out the chairs and tables and burned the chairs and tables in the street and then burned the church "That means it's been going on for 24 hours," he said pointing to the smoke still rising from the ruins. Only one wall of the wooden church was left standing.

Residents said six other churches had been looted or stoned.

The flames from the Batak church spread to a residential area behind the building which the caretaker - who refused to give his name - said housed some 500 families. Flimsy shacks vanished in the blaze, while a three-storey apartment block was gutted.

The homes closest to the church belonged to Chinese, who are a frequent target of noting Moslem mobs in Indonesia. Moslem homes lying further back were also destroyed.

A Chinese woman sifting through the debris of her home said perhaps the Moslems were jealous of Chinese wealth.

McVeigh defense witness changes her story

DENVER (AP) - A bombing survivor who was supposed to back Timothy McVeigh's claim of innocence told a different story Friday, testifying she saw a lightskinned man get out of a Ryder truck in front of the federal building moments before the blast.

Daina Bradley, who lost two children, her mother and a leg in the April 19, 1995, explosion, previously said she saw only one persoo get out of the truck, an oliveskinned man who bore oo resemblance to Timothy McVeigb. Ms. Bradley testified Friday that she saw two men, the oliveskinned man and a light-skinned man who got out of the driver's side of the truck. McVeigh, 29, faces murder and conspiracy charges and could get the death penalty if convicted. The explosion killed 168 people and injured 500 others in the deadliest act of terrorism on US soil. McVeigh has a light complex-ion, but Daina Bradley couldn't say for sure whether McVeigh was the light-skinned man she saw. "You bave never said that Timothy McVeigh was the person who got out of the truck, have you," asked defense attorney Cheryl Ramsey.

"No," Ms. Bradley replied, addiog that both men walked away very quickly in different directions.

The defense attorney then took Ms. Bradley through several pre-trial interviews in which she never mentioned the light-skinned man. "I don't remember half the things I said," Ms. Bradley said. Ms. Bradley then put her head down and clasped her hands in front of her face. She was given a break to talk with her attorney. McVeigh stared intently at her.

Previously, she told FBI agents the man she saw get out of the truck resembled the sketcb of John Doe No. 2, who investigators have since acknowledged depicts a man not involved in the bombing.

Under cross-examination, US Attorney Patrick Ryan suggested Ms. Bradley's memory might be faulty. "Yes," she replied. "You can tell me one thing one week, and I would forget it the oext week.

arents in Moldova. Ethiopia, Gaza and Hebron send their children - weak. leihargic, their skin sometimes tinged blue from lack of oxygen - to a Holon Hospital. Three weeks later, returned to their parents, the youngsters are able to kick around a soccer ball.

Since early last year, the openheart. surgery and rehabilitation have been offered completely free of charge by an altruistic team of volunteers at Wolfson Hospital's pediatric cardiology department.

Led by department head Dr. Amram Cobeo, the Save a Child program is unique in the world repairing more foreign young bearts free than any other hospital in the world.

The idea originated in 1988. when Harriet Hodges, founder of a voluctary organization called Save the Hearts, asked Dr. Coben - then serving in the US military in Seoul, Korea - if he would operate on some of the children in her program. Hodges was committed to sendiog 300 poor South Korean children to Western countries for treatment; since ber budget was limited, she sent the children to the medical ceoters with the most reasonable price. Cohen, who was chief of pediatric surgery at the presti-gioos Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington, D.C., and on a tour of duty in Korea, agreed and performed 35 such operations in Seoul. Bitten by the bug of helping the helpless, Cohen decided to launch his own program when he came on aliya in 1992 and was hired to head the Wolfson pediatric cardiac surgery unit. Last year, 46 youngsters (including 15 from the Palestinian Authority) had lifesaving open-heart surgery at Wolfson, and 150 – 30 Ethiopians, 30 Moldovans, 22 Gazans, 20 Hebronites, 18 Eritreans and 30 Kazakhs - are due to be treated this year. In 1998. Save a Child hopes to reach its maximum possible capacity, at least for the time being, of 250 patieots.

Cohen, a big, mustachioed man who was born in the US capital, lived in Israel as a child in the Sixiles and returned with his family tn Silver Spring, Maryland, to attend bigh school, Jobns Hopkins University and the University of Virginia Medical School. He studied the specialty of surgery at Walter Reed and at Brooke Army Medical Ceoter in San Antonio, and of pediatric cardiac surgery at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Now a dual US-Israeli citizen, he continues to serve in the US army as a lieutenant-colonel in the reserves. "I go back for three weeks a year of reserve duty," Cohen explains, "Some US hospitals do three or four pro bono heart operations on needy foreign children a year. There are many volunteer groups that deal with cardiology, but few offer free heart surgery to correct congenital defects in children."

Coben managed to persuade the management of Wolfson - a government hospital headed by Dr. Moshe Mashiah - to agree to the project; since the operations are performed by doctors and nurses in the late afternoons and evenings on their own time, the program doesn't come at the expense of Wolfson's regular patients. The other volunteer personnel include Dr. Lior Sasson (a surgeon who will soon be sent to California for a year for formal studies in pediatric cardiac surgery - the volume of cases there is large enough to provide expertise in all the various types of operations); pediatric cardiologist Dr. Akiva Tamir, pediatric intensive-care unit director Dr. Sion Houri, intensive-care staff physician Dr.

Dr. Amram Cohen with children who have undergone open-heart surgery through the 'Save a Child' program.

Zabeeda and a dozen or so Wolfson nurses. Sally Esakov, a bospital staffer, donates her time to serve as administrative coordinator of the program, which involves complicated logistics and organization.

In order to choose candidates for surgery, Cohen and some of his colleagues travel to the country where the children live once or twice a year. They and local doctors examine them and the most suitable ones are chosen to come to Israel. Groups of young-Yoram Ben-Yehuda, pediatric sters are arranged so that older doctors anesthesiologist Dr. Deeb children are matched with low-up.

younger ones during the flight. Met at the airport by Savc a Child personnel who speak their language, they are taken to a residence not far from the Holon hospital and supervised by adults as they adjust to Israeli time. After the surgery, they are cared for in intensive care until they are well enough to be moved to the regular pediatric department and from there to the residence to complete their recovery. Three weeks later, they fly bome, better than new, and are met with local doctors who ensure proper fol-

The cost for all this is $10,000 per child, including flights and accommodations - a very low figure due to all the work by volunteers.

Funds to cover expenses are raised by Cohen and his family and the Wolfson Cardiac in Rockville, Foundation Maryland, with support from the Joint Distribution Committee and the blessings of the Foreign Ministry's Department for International Cooperation (Mashhav). The Herzliya Medical Center has donated its catheterization lab for free diag-nostic examinations of the children.

The more money that is raised, the greater the number of operations that could be performed, says Cohen. The hospital's facililies currently limit the annual number to 250, but if that maximum is reached, he will seek local and foreign volunteers from other hospitals, and may even "farm out" some patients to other Israeli medical centers.

There are, at present, seven pediatric cardiac surgeons in Israel, together performing some 400 open-heart operations (10 repair or replace defective valves and other congenital defecis). "There used to be about 800 annually in the country, but many of them are now never born, as serious defects can be detected during pregnancy and are aborted as fetuses. It iso't yet technically possible to repair such fetal defects in the womb." While some parents - mostly baredim and Arabs - decide to continue the pregnancy, the risks are relatively bigh, and 10% of the babies die soon after birth.

"There is no queue for such heart surgery here; none of us are nverworked," Cohen says. There is no reason to send a baby with a congenital heart defect abroad today, a situation that existed as late as the Eighties, he contin-ues, as he and his colleagues have been well trained here and abroad.

Althnugh the young foreign patients are the main beoeficiaries of the program. Cohen says that he and his team gain as well. "We deal with cases that we wouldn't ordinarily confront in Israel, where babies are diagnosed and treated quickly. Children fram abroad lend to come older, sometimes at an age beyond the limit of surgery here. And because we can't count on the same type of follow-up and drug treatment there that we give here, we often repair faulty heart valves instead of replacing them completely."

Word about the success of the project has gotten out, and requests for inclusion in the program have been informally made by Nigeria, Kenya and China. We will do our best. In some countries, there are 400 or 500 children waiting in their local hospital's queue for heart surgery but only a handful are accepted, or local facilities may be unable to offer such treatment • at all."

on't bite off more than you can chew, and watch out for the skewers, warn doctors at Meir Hospital in Kfar Sava, who treated 10 people - aged three to 76 - who were injured while eating at Independence Day barbecues.

Prof. Dov Ofir, director of the hospital's ear-nose-and-throat department, says that children should be especially careful when eating meat from wooden or metallic skewers. A three-year-old girl was brought in on Independence Day with a piece of wooden skewer stuck in her throat. She was rushed to the operating room for surgery under a in California, said that Israel general anesthetic to prevent hemorrhaging and choking. Fortunately, due to the quick action, she was saved. Eight other patients with similar injuries were treated there the same day, but fortunately they required only a partial anesthetic as an esophaguscope was used to pull the foreign body out of their throats.

The 76-year-old patient was a man with dentures who had bitten off a hefry, 100-gram chunk of steak and tried to swallow it. It got stuck in his throat and had to be pulled out. Ofir stressed that many people with deniures don't chew their food enough and don't feel the prick of skewers and other foreign objects. Thus, he says, they should be especially careful when caling.

GYNECOLOGISTS OPT FOR KEYHOLE SURGERY

The "kcyholc" method of surgery is now used for a third of all gynecological operations in Israel, and complications involve an average of just 3.5 cases out of 1,000 women who undergo the procedure.

Dr. Motti Pansky of the gynecology department at Assaf Harofeh Hospital in Tzrifin, who examined 1,500 cases of endoscopic surgery used in gynecological departments, noted that the method is becoming increasingly popular among doctors and patients alike. Small punctures are made in the skin to insert a tiny optic fiber. surgical implements and an air tube to inflate the area. Bleeding is drastically reduced, as is recovery time. Speaking at a recent Assaf Harofeh seminar on the use of endoscopy in gynecological surgery, Pansky said it is the method of choice for treating mechanical fertility problems (involving blockages in the fallopian tubes or the problems with the ovaries), removal of ovarian cysts, hysterectomies, and halting urine leakage due to the "sinking" of the bladder.

Doctors at the seminar noted that complications were most frequent among obese and very thin women. In very overweight patients, it was difficult to estimate the thickness of the fat layers through which the endoscope has to be pushed; in very thin women, there was a greater risk of harming internal organs by pushing the endoscope in too forcefully. Prof. Karl Levinson, an expert in the field from Stanford University should adopt the formal training requirements demanded of gynecological surgeons in the US for permission to perform such keyhole surgery.

NO AIDS VACCINE ON HORIZON

Hopes for a vaccine that could protect mankind against AIDS may be over-optimistic, warns Dr. Robert Gallo, the co-discoverer of the fatal virus. Medical science may never find a vaccine to protect against AIDS because the infection poses unique problems that may be unsolvable, said Gallo, who heads the University of Maryland's Institute of Human Virology, at a recent US symposium.

"It's safe to say that we know more about this virus and this disease than we know about any other," he said. But there are a number of high hurdles that may prevent a vaccine from ever being developed, AP reported.

There is no cheap, short-lived laboratory animal that can be infected with HIV for the testing of vaccines. In addition, HIV constantly mutates, so often there are a variety of HIV strains within a single patient. To be effective, a vaccine would have to protect against each strain.

The HIV virus integrates itself into the body, becoming part of the DNA in cells of the immune system. To be protective, a vaccine has to prime the immune system against a microbe. "We don't know if the immune system could be primed to do that against HIV," said Gallo. Finally, protection may require that every single virus in the body is killed, a trick that is not required of other vaccines.

Although the onset is most often after the age company CTS, which produces the of 60, there are younger patients, even in their late 40s, some of whom contract the disease after a bout of encephalitis or poisoning by certain metals or drugs.

There is a growing variety of drugs to ameliorate the condition, but these may cause side effects, and nothing vet has been found to cure Parkinson's, whose cause is not real-

"It's really a difficult disease, but patients can be helped," declares Naomi Klarfeld, an experienced, British-bom physiotherapist who specializes in exercise with old people and authored the 38-page exercise booklet. Some are so ashamed that they haven't even informed their children that they have Parkinson's. If they would admit it, and become active in the Parkinson's Group, they could hear the latest developments, get emotional and practical support, go on organized trips and feel better."

Although exercise does not climinate the symptoms, Klarfeld explains, it can moderate them, making muscles more flexible, helping patients to relax and reduce their anxiety. It can also reduce drooling and improve speech and diction. Swimming and hydrotherapy can also be very helpful.

Klarfeld often consults with Parkinson's Group neurologist Dr. Nir Giladi of Ichilov Hospital, as well as other doctors, when she is time between Kupat Holim Clalit's confronted with a particularly diffi-

None are extremely strenuous, but patients who fear exercising for the first time in their lives can start with facial exercises involving the tongue, mouth and eyes. Dr. Suzy Ronen, o senior ophthalmologist of erusalem's Shaare Zedek Hospital, replies:

While it's recommended to read under optimal conditions, such a practice won't harm the sight of most people. There are some who have a tendency to lose focus, especially when the object or text they are looking at is moving. They find it hard to hold their gaze, and this scares and frustrates them. It can be corrected with eye exercise or glasses, and the damage is not permanent. Reading in poor light is not recommended, but it won't cause permanent damage.

Iran's second revolution

Those used to the image of Iran as a dark. fundameotalist, and xenophohic dictatorship may find it hard to come to terms with a landslide surprise win by a known moderate in this weekend's presidential elections.

Iran is far from a model democracy, of course - unless it is compared with almost any Arab state except Yemen and, maybe, Jordan. But it also is far from the cliched image of Western propaganda, as this election clearly shows. One of the unpalatable facts about Iran is that its anti-Western stance has not been merely the convenient invection of a fanatical leadership to divert attention from domestic problems. By and large it has been a policy popular with most Iranians outside the upper and middle classes. The hatred of the United States stemmed from persistent American interference in Iranian affairs, especially the CIA's coup in the 1950s, which brought Shah Pahlevi to despotic power. It was pure hatred of the oppressive Shah that paved the way for Ayatollah Khomeini's revolution in 1979 and that hatred, fueled hy Islamic fanaticism, was transferred to the shah's two best friends, the United States and Israel.

Although President-elect Mohammed Khatami campaigned on maintaining the state's hostility to the US and Israel while improving relations with other Western countries, there may be room for some hope that, with the election rhetoric over, some thaw in the attitude to the "great and little Satans" might emerge. Nonetheless, it must not be forgotten that Rafsanjani, too, was first admired as a moderate and pragmatic man. With hindsight it can be seen that he was - hut only when compared with the uncompromising fanaticism of Khomeini, whom he succeeded as leader.

Khatami must now travel the road Rafsanjanj had boped to take - but was pushed off of it by the religious successors of Khomeini. After 18 years of revolutionary rhetoric, Iranians - particularly the young - bave signaled that they want change. The religious establishment surrounded, suffocated, and eventually defeated Rafsanjani. It might find Khatami a tougher nut to crack when he has such a powerful domestic mandate. There is little doubt the mullahs were shocked by the result - they backed the wrong candidate, the ultra-conservative speaker of parliament Ali Akbar Nateq-Nouri. But that is no guarantee the religious will concede power and influence easily.

Like religious fanatics in any country with a banner. Even some senior clerics have backed him, as well as lay intellectuals. Western-style liberals, and those who provided his real landslide - the mass of women and young people.

Khatami has all the potential for changing Iran. He has degrees in philosophy and has lived in Europe - in addition to Farsi he speaks English, German, and Arabic. Most amazingly for an Islamic cleric, especially in Iran, he openly attributes his success to his wife. He gave a recent interview to the main woman's monthly magazine Zanan, in which he said he has no objection to womeo ministers in government.

With Khatami clearly elected for his libertarian tendencies, the main questions are how much space for maneuver will he have, and how will he change Iran's foreign policy? Regarding foreign policy, the short answer may be "not much." The early indications are that, despite his cosmopolitan leanings, Khatami was elected for serious domestic reasons and his will be a seriously domestic government. As to his room for maneuver, "not much" could well be the answer, too. The presidency is the top elected office in Iran, but the point made above about Iran being far from a proper democracy is bighly relevant. While the election was free and fair, and indeed produced a major upset, it must not be forgotten that only those candidates approved by the religious guardians of the state were allowed to stand in the first place.

The president in fact takes a mere second place to the unelected supreme spiritual leader the office held hy the Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, Khomeini's successor, who has the last word over all operations of government, on the premise that they must be inspected for Islamic righteousness. And pro-clergy conservatives retain control of the 270-seat Mailis, which must approve each of Khatami's ministers. Khamenei may retain firm control of Iran's foreign policy - which means there will be no reprieve for British author Salman Rushdie and the death fatwa on him, a major bone of contention with the West. Interestingly also, Iran's veteran foreign minister of 18 years, Ali Akbar Velayati, strongly backed Khatami's opponent, Nateq-Nouri. Foreign policy watchers abroad will be keen to see if any signs of strain or conflict emerge between the new president and a foreign minister backed by the powerful Khamenei.

As far as Israel is concerned, it would be unwise to expect any easing of Iran's implaca-

Let's talk compensation

While talks with the Palestinians have been YOSEF GOELL

on bold for quite some time now, there is good reason to believe that, sooner or later -probably sooner - they will be jump-started again.

Recent weeks have held signs that among all the issues in those talks, ooe will loom large: Palestinian and other Arab demands that Israel pay compen-sation for farmer Arab lands and properties it took over in the course of several wars; and that damages be awarded to Palestinian victims of the inufa-da, which stretched from 1987-93. In March, former Jordanian information minister Marwan Muasher (since appoioted ambassador to Washington) told a Jordanian newspaper that Jordan had not yet received a formal reply from Israel to its demand that Israel return all lands and properties confiscated under its 1951 absentee property law from former residents of Palestine who are today citizens nf Jnrdan.

The Jordanians raised this demand shortly after the signing of the peace treaty with Israel in 1994.

We may expect these demands to take on renewed urgency in light of the recent opening up of State Archive records from the early 1950s.

Yossi Melman of Ha'aretz has been studying this material. He recently wrote about Israel gov-ernment deliberations in 1951, in which then foreign minister Moshe Sharett reported international assessments of the value of land and other property left behind hy the 600,000 Palestinian refugees who fled in the wake of Tera Somerova, 78, has no pictures in her tiny Prague apartment of the day she married Prof. Walter Eisinger 53 years ago. Nor does her neighbor Kurt Kotouc, one of the invited guests.

It is hardly surprising, considering that the wedding took place in the Theresienstadt concentration camp, just north of Prague.

Eisinger, a passionate optimist, lived with and taught a group of 14-year-old boys (Kotouc among them) who had seen their parents shipped off to Auschwitz. Eisinger continually instilled in his charges, and in his wife, the belief that the war would end and everything would be set right.

It was not to be. The teacher and all but a few of the boys were eventually murdered. Since then, Eisinger's widow and former student have waited in Prague for some kind of restitution to compensate for the horror that has eaten up their lives like cancer.

They and other Jews throughout the former East Bloc were denied direct compensation from Germany during the Cold War. Since the collapse of communism, some of the governments in the region have made token onetime payments made possible by funds from Germany. However, they are a fraction of what survivors have received in noncommunist countries, although East Bloc survivors' medical needs and economic blight are exponentially worse.

THE irony is brutal. While no Holocaust survivor in the Czech Republic receives compensation from the German state, many of their German guards are eligible for special pensions.

Bangkok's rotating rabbi

250 Jews live happily amidst millions of Thai Buddhists, reports Tom Tugend from Bangkok

The Jerusalem Post Sunday, May 25, 1997

To serve its 250 permanent Jewish residents, Bangkok has three synagogues and one rabbi, who leads all the services in rotation.

If that sounds like an old Jewish joke. it's an arrangement that suits a community which feels at home in this overwhelmingly Buddhist nation, but keeps a low profile and has been scarred by past terrorist attacks.

The three synagogues serve as a rough guide to the makeup of the permanent and transient Jewish community here.

Worshipers at the showpiece Beit Elisheva synagogue tend to be wealthier suburbanites. The three-story building doubles as community center and houses the sanctuary, meeting and recreation rooms, mikve, and the living quarters of the youthful Rabbi Yosef Kantor and his family. A recent addition has been daily pre-school classes for six children, complementing a Sunday school for older pupils. They are taught by two young women, still in their late teens, who arrived two months ago from Kfar Habad in Israel.

Bangkok, as the gem-trade capital of the world, has attracted a large number of Israeli businessmen. They, along with tourists staying at the more expensive hotels, pray at the appropriately named Even Chen (Precious Stone, in Hebrew) in the center of the city.

Serving the lower end of the economic scale is the Or Menahem synagogue, which, with a kosher kitchen, is part of Beit Habad. It caters to the stream of backpackers, an estimated 15,000 a year from Israel alone, who stay at the nearby cheap hostels and guest houses.

The first contingent of Jews arrived in Thailand at the turn of the century, mainly from Middle Eastern countries. These Sephardi Jews were joined in the 1920s by groups of Ashkenazim, said "Jacob," whose father arrived here from Russia, via Italy, in 1920.

"Jacob," who asked that his real name not be used, represents what is now the oldest Jewish family in Bangkok and is president of the lewish community, as his father was a generation earlier.

Besides the contingent of Israeli businessmen, the community includes a sizable segment of American Jews. The men, mainly lawyers, got to know Thailand while serving with the US military or the Peace Corps, liked what they saw and decided to stay. Jacob's request for anonymity is grounded in his sense of vulnerability to terrorist attacks. In 1973. the Palestinian Black September group seized the Israeli Embassy here, though Thai authorities were able to defuse the situation without bloodshed.

Four years ago, Jacob says, police apprebended a terrorist by a stroke of luck. He had enough explosive material to level everything within a mile radius in the heart of the city." Surveying his constituency, Jacob notes that "basically, all of us are Orthodox, we have no Reform or Conservative Jews here." The community gets together for Purim and Hanukka parties and during the past year celebrated one wedding, one brit and a few bar mitzvas, and welcomed one young Thai woman as a convert, As for the burden of the presidency, Jacob confides that "just because it's a small community, it doesn't mean it's an easy one."

Bangkok's Rabbi Yosef Kantor, a Jewish presence in a Buddhist land.

What attracts Jews to live in Thailand? "It's a nice country with friendly people. All religions can function freely, and there are good business opportunities," says Jacob.

ing rabbis. "We had one who stayed for a year, and then a second one who left after six months," says Jacob. Four years ago, community leaders turned to the Lubavitcher rebbe, who dispatched Rabbi Kantor. The 28-year-old native of Australia has "done a terrific job," according to Jacob.

Leah, who hails from Los Angeles, are now well settled and are raising a family. He relies primarily on e-mail to stay in touch with Habad headquarters in Brooklyn and with the rest of the world.

Some things, though, are hard to get used to, including the extremely hot and humid weather. "Sometimes I dream of just taking a pleasant walk, like in Los Angeles," says the rebbet-zin. "Now [in February] it's the middle af the winter and the temperature is 100 degrees [38°C].

Mindi Gerlitzky, one of the two young teachers recently arrived from Kfar Habad, is struck by other phenomena. "I was shocked to see so many Israelis here," she says. And noting the omnipresent statues of Buddha, she adds, "I realize how lucky we are to be Jewish." Israeli tourists now flock to Thailand at the rate of 50,000 a year, according to Ya'akov Avrahami, the No. 2 man at the Israeli Embassy.

Besides the 15.000 back-packers, there are some 35,000 mostly middle-aged visitors, attracted by cheap package tours and the regu-lar El Al flights between Tel Aviv and Bangkok.

The Israeli Embassy was opened io 1957, but the Thai reciprocated ooly last year in opeoing an embassy in Tel Aviv. One reason for the latter move was to serve the estimated 20,000 Thai nationals now working in Israel, mainly in the agricultural sector. Trade between the two countries runs at $500 million a year, with the balance almost 2:1 in Israel's favor. Thai exports are mainly in diamonds and gemstones, and imports from Israel include machinery, electronics and communication equipment.

Diplomatic relations between Thailand and Israel function smoothly, says Avrahami, and judging by the three English-language dailies in Bangkok, Thailand's people and government seem well disposed to the Jewish state.

Not Page One Why did the chicken take the bus? By Sam Orbaum

suppose it's because I don't take buses often enough: when I slide my NIS 16.50 under the bulletproof glass to the Egged teller for a one-way prayer to Tel Aviv, I feel like ... I've committed myself to a spectacular death. I can't shake this feeling that there might be Palestinian suicide bombers for whom all the fun is in not getting there. I'm not kidding. I seem to be the only one looking under seats, or sizing up fellow riders for a hint of martyrdom in their eyes, as if 1 know what a martyr's expression might look like.

I'll sit near the driver so I can leap upon a terrorist who might try to commandeer the bus over a cliff.

I try to get a seat near a door, to maximize my chance of getting out of an inferno (assuming I survived the initial blast), or I'll sit near the driver so I can leap upon a terrorist who might try to commandeer the bus over a cliff. Hey, I wouldn't want to be at the back, helpless, vainly hoping some guy at the front snaps into action to save my life. I'll try to pinpoint the rider most likely to disassemble himself, and decline to sit next to him. All right, laugh. Maybe I'm a lit-tle hysterical. Like I said, I haven't taken enough buses to overcome the paranoia. And I accept, not without embarrassment, that I'm as silly as those American Jews who don't come to Israel out of fear, preferring the risk of getting stabbed closer to home.

This must be a common unease a day or two after a bus bombing, not year after. I suppose that's why the the driver said, with a derisive smirk. "You're not going to die. My passengers never die."

I pointed out that there were signs all over the country urging the public to be alert, and I was doing just that. And furthermore, I added, I'm a journalist interested in doing a story on just this phenomenon. I whipped out my notepad for effect.

The thought of being blown to bits didn't faze him, but, apparently, the fear of what dreadful damage a newspaperman could do did: not five minutes after he steered his No. 405 out of the Jerusalem bus station, he pulled over onto the shoulder of the highway, jumped out, and wouldn't you know, he went to check the baggage hold.

Wheo he returned to his seat, he sneaked a peek at me through his rear-view mirror to make sure I'd noticed. I grinned back at him.

It was apparently just sheer coincidence that, just outside Tel Aviv, he pulled over to the shoulder ogain, and evacuated the bus, because a thick white cloud of smoke was spewing from, you guessed it, the area of the rear right wheel. I was right!

I ran through the suffocating billow to safety.

The driver ascertained, to everyone's uncertain satisfaction, that there was no danger, and he herded us back on the bus. But he knew what was coming.

That damn journalist again, "Nothing to worry about," he said dully. "Just smoke." "Y'know, where there's smoke there's -'

"Look, do you want to go to Tel Aviv or not?"

"Think you can get us there?" He did,

At the bus station, the driver went off and did whatever it is bus drivers do at the end of a run, and I went off and did what nudnik journalists do: I took a cab to Egged HQ, notepad in hand.

"We've got 4,100 buses on the roads every day," Egged spokes-man Ron Ramer explained. "Two million people get on and off an Egged or Dan bus daily. We can't k every bag.

Remaining forever puppy-like

By D'VORA BEN SHAUL

There are some dogs that never really seem to grow up. But this is not the fault of the owners, as many of us tend to believe. Animal behaviorists at the College of Veterinary Medicine in Edinburgh say that it's the breed that in fact determines the dog's capacity for mature behavior.

In order to study and to quantify this "maturity factor" the research team studied the behavior of dogs of 10 different breeds and compared it to the behavior, both juvenile and adult, of the dog's wild ancestor, the wolf. Of the 15 characteristic behavioral traits of wolves that express showed all of the adult wolf aggression or submission, they found that some breeds had almost none of the adult characteristics in this field but all of the juvenile or "puppy type" behaviors. For instance, adult wolves show aggression in many ways including staring a rival down, lifting the lip in an almost silent snarl, or fixing their rival with a stare while baring their teeth.

Juvenile wolves, on the other hand, have only two aggressive behavior tricks, growling or pbysically pushing a rival away. While some breeds of dogs showed only these two "puppy" aggressions, there were other breeds that showed several, and one that behavioral panems. When it came to submissive signals, here too there was a great difference. While adult wolves have a wide range of submission signs including showing the white of the eye, baring the neck and lifting the corners of the lips in a "submissive smile," the juvenile wolf cub knows only one, licking the face and muzzle of a rival wolf. Dogs too showed a range of behavior in the various breeds but remarkably many knew only the puppy trick of face-licking and substituted the owner's hands for the muzzle of a rival wolf. The the most immature breed was found to be the King

Charles spaniel, that employed only one of the nine threatening tactics, the growl, and none of the submission tactics, not even the muzzle lick.

The miniature and toy breeds in general rated lowest on the scale of maturity, although surprisingly some of the small terriers showed a quite mature range of behavior. Topping the maturity scale were huskies, chow chows, the herding breeds and some of the standard working breeds. To the surprise of many the standard or large poodle scored as very mature. So if your pooch seems to be a perpetual Peter Pan, take beart. Mommy isn't always to blame. It may well be in the genes.

Seeking elusive French Open title

Top seed Sampras to face Santoro in opening round

the start as he bids for the only title missing from his Grand Slam collection.

Winless on clay this year and coming off a thigh injury, Sampras drew a challenging first-round opponent Friday for the French Open, which begins tomorrow.

The top-seeded American was paired against Fabrice Santoro, a crafty French baseliner who has been one of the top clay court players this season.

On clay this year, Sampras lost his opening matches in Monte Carlo and Rome, and retired in the third set of a match Monday at the World Team Cup in Duesseldorf, Germany with a nuscle strain. He pulled out of the rest of the event to safeguard his chances for the French Open.

Santoro, a French Open junior champion in 1989, has been a journeyman player for much of his career. But he beat Sampras in the first round of the Italian Open two years ago. Ranked No. 57, Sanioro has beaten former French Open champions Thomas Muster and Sergi Bruguera this year and reached the semifinals in Monte Carlo and Prague. "It will be a real test between the two players," tournament director Patrice Clerc said. "Sampras will be testing his obysical condition, while Santoro will be testing his potential." Clerc defended the seeding of Sampras as No. 1, despite his lack of success on clay.

In all, Sampras has won four US Opens, three

PARIS (AP) - Pete Sampras will need to be sharp from Wimbledons and two Australian Opens, including the last Krajicek vs. Ivanisevic, and Chang vs. Rios. one in January. His best showing in Paris was last year, when he reached the semifinals.

If Sampras gets through the first round, he has a relatively easy draw until the quarterfinals. But there, he could run into either Alex Corretja or Carlos Moya, two dangerous Spanish clay-courters.

Second-seeded Michael Chang drew a qualifier in the first round, while defending champion and No. 3 seed Yevgeny Kafelnikov will face Martin Damm.

Muster, seeded fifth this year and mired in a terrible slump, could have trouble in the first round against Germany's Marc-Kevin Goellner. No. 4 Goran Ivanisevic also could bave an early tough time against Sweden's Magnus Gustafsson.

The tournament lost some of its luster already when Boris Becker and Andre Agassi withdrew with injuries.

The latest dropout Friday was Sweden's Thomas Enquist, who had been seeded No. 9. His withdrawal means Bruguera, the 1993 and 1994 champion, becomes the No. 16 seed.

Micbael Stich, last year's losing finalist, had announced his withdrawal Thursday. But his name was included in the draw Friday, and Clerc said Stich still may play.

If the draw holds form, the men's quarterfinals would be Sampras vs. Corretia, Kafelnikov vs. Muster, Richard On the women's side, No. 1 Martina Hingis will return to competition against Slovakia's Henrieta Nagyova, 37th in the world.

The 16-year-old Hingis, winner of the Australian Open and unbeaten this year in six tournaments, fell off a horse on April 21 and injured her knee. She has not played a tournament match on clay this year.

Hingis could face an interesting test in the third round against 15-year-old Anna Kournikova. Hingis routed Koumikova the last time they met, but Koumikova has gained some impressive victories lately.

Another young star, 16-year-old American Venus Williams, will be playing in ber first Grand Slam and could face Monica Seles in the third round.

Last year's women's champion and five-time winner, Steffi Graf, takes on Argentina's Paola Suarez, No. 84 in the world.

Graf missed play from February until last week at Berlin because of a knee injury.

Seles, a three-time champion here, is seeded third and will face Miho Saeki of Japan.

The potential women's quarterfinals are: Hingis vs. Aranixa Sanchez-Vicario, Seles vs. Anke Huber, Jana Novoma vs. Lindsay Davenport, and Graf vs. Conchita Martinez

Atherton secures series for England

Flyers, Red Wings enjoy 3-1 leads

NEW YORK (AP) - Eric Lindros again took advantage of the battered New York Rangers, breaking a tie with seven seconds to play Friday night to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 3-2 Game 4 victory and a commanding lead in the Eastern Conference finals.

The Flyers lead the best-of-7 series 3-1 and New York could be eliminated in Game 5 today in Philadelphia. The Flyers last weot to the finals 10 years ago.

"That backhand shot is from almost the dot in the face-off circle." Flyers coach Terry Murray said. "I think you'd see most play-ers in that kind of position would try and pull it to a forehand and if that had been the case it might have been too late."

The Rangers repeatedly turned over the puck in their own zone and took five penalties to the Flyers two.

LONDON (AP) - Michael Atherton hit a classy, unbeaten 113 yesterday to steer England to a six-wicket win and an unbeatable 2-0 lead in the three-match, oneday series.

Atherton, produced a typically inspirational captain's performance, held the innings together throughout the chanceless 149ball knock as he upstaged Michael Bevan's unbeaten 108 in Australia's 249-6.

England scored 253 runs for four wickets in 48.2 overs. It was Atherton's second limited overs century in 52 matches, and be kept a cool head throughout the innings, hitting just 10 fours.

Man-of-the match Atherton, one of England's batting successes during the winter tour to New Zealand, shared three half century stands and finished the game with play with goaltender Mike Richter Adam Hollioake, who remained unbeaten on 53.

The pair consolidated England's strong batting effort, sharing 95 runs off just 84 balls for the fifth wicket to achieve victory with 10 balls to spare.

Atherton, opening the batting with England requiring five runs an over to win the series, shared 71 runs for the second wicket with vice captain Alec Stewart (40) and 54 for the fourth with Graham Lloyd (22).

Hollioake, England's hero in the six-wicket win in Leeds with an unbeaten 66, outscored his captain in scoring his runs off 41 balls.

Australian-born Hollioake, who finished the first win with a six, hê mate boundary, cross-batting medium paceman Michael Kasprowicz to square leg. Stewart played a forceful innings at first wicket down- and hit seven boundaries as his runs coming off at a run a ball. He used his feet against Shane Warne, moving down the track to hit two boundaries in the lcg spinner's first over, and following it up with two straight driven boundaries off Kasprowicz. It was Athenon's second limited overs century in 52 matches, and kept a cool head throughout the innings, hitting just 10 fours. Bevan shared a record fifth wicket partnership with Adam Gilchrist - 113 runs, rescuing the innings from a precariously placed 98-4. The host Bulls, only slightly less awful than the Miami Heat, won the lowest-scoring playoff game in NBA history to grab control of the Eastern Conference finals.

The 143 combined points were two fewer than the previous postseason low set by Syracuse and Fort Wayne in 1955.

Michael Jordan took over down the stretch and matched teammate Scottie Pippen's 23 points to give Chicago a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series, which shifted to Miami for Game 3 last night.

The Heat's woes came on the heels of a 28-point second half in Game 1, when they blew a 16-point lead. Miami has only 145 points in the two games. Jordan, whose 33.9 career playoff scoring average is the highest in league history, had only 13 points on 3-for-14 shooting with five minutes to go and the Bulls clinging to a 59-58 lead.

The national volleyball team lost an excruciating game last night to Slovakia in Bratislava, surrendering the one automatic ticket to the European Championship finals in the Netherlands to their hosts. The score was 3-0 (15-6, 15-10, 15-8).

Last week, Israel beat Slovakia 3-1 at home and hopes were high that the team could break the jinx of losing all their away games. Last night's score sealed the Slovakian record of winning all their home games. Despite the intense disappointment, Israel is not entirely out of the picture. The final game in her group next week when Latvia hosts Poland will decide if Israel ends the preliminary rounds in second place,

The second-placed nations will then enter a playoff round from which five teams will reach the finals.

Lions win opener

PORT ELIZABETH (AP) - The British Lions, stung to find them-selves trailing early in the second half yesterday, ran off 29 unanswered points to win the opener of their South African rugby union tour 39-11 over Eastern Province.

The Lions generally had bener field position but managed only a try by Jeremy Guscott, along with a conversion and penalty from Neil Jenkins, in the first half to a pair of penalties for Eastem's Theo van Rensberg for a 10-6 lead.

Guscot clearly relished the chance to prove Jack Rowell wrang, and it was fitting that he score the game's opening try after II minutes.

Scores: BRITISH LIONS 39 (Jeremy Guscott 2, Doddie Weir, Toay Underwood, Will Greenwood tries; Neil Jenkins 2 penalties, 4 conversions. EASTERN PROVINCE 11 (Deon Kayser try; Theo van Rensburg 2 penalties).

Hap PT look 2nd-best, Betar relax, Ironi Ashdod promoted

By ORI LEWIS and DEREK FATTAL

Ironi Ashdod celebrated and Zafririm Holon mourned after the penultimate weekeod of soccer action for the current season.

Ashdod celebrated their return to the National League after an absence of two seasons with a convincing 3-1 win over Hapoel Kiryat Shmona, while fellow-promotion bopefuls, Maccabi Netanya could manage only a 1-1 draw away to Betar Tel Aviv in the last weekend of action in the Second Division

Hapoel Petah Tikva are well on course to clinching the second spot in the National League standings after a convincing 3-1 win over Hapoel Kfar Sava, while Hapoel Beersheba lost at home to Hapoel Haifa on Friday. Beersheha's best bet for a European cup berth now appears to lie in the State Cup. If they can beat Maccabi Tel Aviv in the final tomorrow night, they will earn a place in the Cup Winners' Cup.

Champions Betar Jerusalem took things easy in their official championship-crowning game at Teddy Stadium. The club was obviously thinking of the celebrations which were to take place later in the evening and they managed only a 1-I draw with Ironi Rishon.

Holon's fate was officially sealed on Friday when they were thrashed 3-1 by Maccabi Haifa. But the impression from the match was that the Holonis had accepted their fate long ago, as they even failed to put op any resistance and give Hapoel Tel Aviv a fight for the second relegation spot.

Kirvat Shmona had needed at least a draw from their match in Ashdod, but with Maccabi Yavne and Ness Ziona both winning, the northemers were left to carry their tails between their legs together with Hapoel Hadera all the way down to the Third Division.

Third Division promotees, Bnei Sakhnin from the northern section, and Hapoel Lod from the southern section played off for the champion of champions title, with Sakhnin coming out 3-1 winners. Both will have their skills put to much more severe tests oext season.

Maccabi Tel Aviv ended 3-1 winners in the Youth State Cup ... final played yesterday in Rishon 2,000 against old foes Maccabi Haifa. The Haifaites got off to a dream start taking the first goal in just the second minute, but as the match progressed, the Tel Avivans took over the driving seat. Guy Safarti proved to be Tel Aviv's hero, scoring a hat trick beginning with a 26th-minute equalizer, and ending with a penalty conversion eight minutes before time.

Betar Jerusalem received the title silver in a festive pre-match ceremony but found their usual touch during the game.

The proceedings got off to a good start with a well-executed fourthminute free kick finished off with a dipping rocket shot hy Itzik Zohar that flew over the Rishon wall and into goal beyond the reach of goalkeeper Sagi Strauss.

The equalizer came around the hour mark when the Betar defense allowed Rishon's Tomas Cibola to get a foot to the ball and redirect it

After the final whistle and obligatory pitch invasion, the yellowand-hlack bannered hordes slowly made their way to the town hall square in the city center where the Betar players were hosted in an official reception by Mayor Ehud Olmert and then presented to Minister Binyamin Prime Netanvahu.

Outside the hall, the Betar fans sang and danced into the early bours of the morning in a colorful and noisy celebration of the club's third championship title.

Hap Petah Tikwa 3, Hap Kfar Sava 1 Boosted by Hapoel Beersheba's defcat on Friday, the Petah Tikvans allowed their opponents little mercy, on their way to virtually assuring themselves of the National League's second spot and the prized UEFA Cup place. .

Motti Kakkon raced onto a cheeky free kick taken by Garbo Marton in the sixth minute to steal his 20th goal of the season to put the host side ahead, while Andrei Christofic was in place to further cmbarrass the Kfar Sava defense just before the half hour,

Mac. Haife 3, Zafririm Holon 1 With no resistance from Holon, Haifa's task looked easy as they notched a convincing scoreline with goals through Alon Harazi (8th minute), Idan Shum (20) and Hezi Shirazi (35).

Hap. Beersheba 0, Hap. Haifa 2 Beersheba looked like they really didn't want to play this match at all. The hot conditions in the Negev on Friday afternoon were not to their liking, and the loss to Hapoel Haifa, who have nothing to play for, is a blow to Beersbeba's hopes of clinching second place in the standings, particularly following Hapoel Petah Kiryat Shmona'a Brazilian player, Marco Lucio pounced on an error in the Ashdod defense and equalized, giving the northemers hope that they would indeed be able to at least gain the point needed to secure another season of Second Division soccer. But late goals by Naor Galili (71) and Sammy Ayash, wbo struck in injury time, as Kiryat Shmona threw all their men forward, did the trick for Ashdod, and allowed their fans to begin a weekeod of celebrations.

Betar Tel Avi

Ness Zione

Bet. TA 1, Mac. Netanya 1 Just as had happened the previous week when they lost 2-1 at home to Maccabi Kirvat Gat. Maccabi Netanya again let their nerves get the better of themselves. Betar had little to play for and did not present stubborn opposition to the side who knew they had to win by a big margin in order to have a chance of getting promoted.

Netanya had many chances to score, but some very poor finishing saw many chances go astray. Shlomi Dahan raised Netanya's hopes when he scored in the 29th minute at the time when Ironi Ashdod and Kiryat Shmona were level at 1-1. That would have been enough, but once Yossi Kasadini had equalized for Betar in the 88th minute, Netanya'a dream of returning to the top flight after just one season in the Second Division, had evaporated completely.

IDF kills Hizbullah gunman 5 others wounded in security zone

By DAVID RUDGE

At least one Hizbullah gunman was killed and as many as five others wounded - some apparently seriously - in an IDF oper-ation north of the security zone in the early hours of yesterday morning. There were no IDF casualties

The soldiers' actions were praised by senior officers and commanders of the Galilee division.

This brought to 20 the number of gunmen, mainly from Hizbullah, who have been killed in clashes with the IDF and South Lebanese Army since the beginning of this year. During the same period, nine IDF sol-diers were killed.

The incident occurred around 1 a.m. yesterday in the Wadi Nafakah area between the villages of Yatar and Zibkin, over two kilometers north of the perimeter of the security zone, in the western sector of south Lehanon.

The IDF Spokesman said an IDF force on operational activi-ties north of the zone killed at least one Hizbullah terrorist and wounded several others. No further details of the operation were available.

Reports from Lebanon, howcver, said the Hizbullah squad was hit by two long-range guided missiles, of a type fired from helicopter gunships.

According to the reports, six gunmen were admitted to a Tyre hospital. Onc was dead on arrival. It was not known whether Hizbullah left any other casualties in the field.

The incident occurred in an area where Hizbullah is known to operate and from where it has launched attacks against the IDF and South Lebanese Army in the past, including infiltrations of the security zone.

The operation is part of the Northern Command's ongoing policy of trying to disrupt the activities of Hizbullah and other realizations, in fighting arm, and making them feel that they are not safe even in what they consider to be their own backyard. The operation early yesterday was the latest in a series of successful IDF operations both inside and beyond the horder of the security zone in the past two months. Ten days ago, however, three members of an elite IDF paratroop unit were killed and seven others wounded while on such an operation.

Despite the losses, OC Northern Command Maj. Gen. Amiram Levine made it clear after that incident that initiated operations against terrorists inside and beyond the security zone would continue.

The operation early yesterday appeared to be one of these perations.

The success of the operation, bowever, did not stop the fighting in the zone with more attacks being reported yesterday, primarily on SLA targets.

Reports from Lebanon said SLA outposts in the Kawkabeh area came under long-range mortar fire on several occasions yesterday afternoon. Mortars were also fired at outposts in the Soujud area late on Friday night. There were no casualties in any of the incidents and IDF and SLA gunners returned fire.

Earlier on Friday morning, a SLA outpost in the eastern sector of the zone came under light weapons fire. There were no injuries or damage. In an unrelated incident in the Jezzine enclave, north of the security zone on Friday evening, a roadside bomb. was detonated alongside a civilian vehicle in a residential area. There were no casualtics in the incident, although the vehicle was damaged.

Hizbullah bas recently intensified its activities against the IDF and SLA, with over 40 incidents recorded in April and around 30 so far this month.

NEW YORK - Switzerland, in its first extended response to the US. report on Nazi gold, assailed the American assessment as "onei sided" and said some of its conclusions are "unsupported." But in an equivocal reaction last week, it also acknowledged mistakes, including a "faint-hearted" policy toward Jewish refugees.

There were "questionable deals" between Swiss business and the Nazi regime that "did not affect the survival of Switzerland," Foreign Minister Flavio Cotti said Thursday. The "declaration of the Federal Council," as the Swiss response is called, said that "neutrality led to a
